Section 7-A of the National Recovery Act has for a long while been the crux criticorum of Mr. Roosevelt's schemes to annihilate the depression, even to his so-called "liberal friends," but that is all over and done with. The truth is out—Mr. Roosevelt's plan to solve labor disputes by collective bargaining has failed wretchedly, irremediably.

About a year ago it was said that Section 7-A would mother the growth and expansion of trade unions, so that labor would stand in a position of equity in the matter of negotiating with capital for the price of its labor-power. As early as one month after the ink had dried on the "new deal for the forgotten man," however, there were evil forebodings of a misfire. Messrs. Johnson and Richberg began "to interpret": The NRA did not purpose to coerce recalcitrant employers into "accepting" trade unions (that would not be in the spirit of the act); the power to enforce the provisions of the codes was not placed in the hands of labor; recognition of unions was to be conditional upon the sympathetic feeling of employers. In short, the one thing made clear by NRA administrators was that the act was to have "no teeth" of any kind. Messrs. Johnson and Richberg still cling to this position.

But a number of shocking realities have come to light in the past few months. Labor does not intend that capital shall exclusively dictate the price at which it will sell its commodity. There have been strikes, and there will undoubtedly continue to be strikes—bigger and fiercer ones. Labor is telling the President that Section 7-A is through, done for; it has taken the administration of the act into its own hands; it has put strong, sturdy teeth into it. And the good general has not been consulted; nor has Mr. Richberg; nor has even the President.

Labor was at first techy, then it balked, now it has turned on its master. It has discovered that Section 7-A was administered in such a manner that labor became the sucker. It has realized that capital holds the gun in arbitral discussion unless labor is organized and can meet fire with fire. It has revolted—not locally—but all over the land—against an oppressing class. Labor is determined to take what it needs to live by!

150 Attend Grange
Picnic, Mt. School

About 150 were in attendance at the picnic sponsored by Orchard City grange and held at the Montezuma school grounds last Sunday. Members of the Mt. Hamilton and Almaden granges were invited to attend the delightful festivities of the day.

A bounteous picnic dinner was served, and was followed by games and entertainment of various sorts, including an inspection of the Montezuma school plant.

The chairman of the day was L. E. Hendricks, master of the local grange. He was assisted by Werner Raab and

Johnson Assures
Consideration Of Old Age Pension

Mrs. Elizabeth DeNise, who has the distinction of circulating the first old age pension bill petition in Campbell, and to which she secured 180 signatures, has received a letter from Senator Hiram Johnson assuring her of his consideration should the proposition reach Washington:

Mrs. Elizabeth Denise
Campbell, Calif.

Dear Mrs. DeNise:

I have yours of May 22 in which you refer to a petition filed by citizens of Campbell with Congressman McGrath concerning an old age pension bill.

Your views, of course, shall have my careful consideration if the measure comes to the senate.

Sincerely yours,

Hiram W. Johnson

Mrs. DeNise circulated another petition for the same cause yesterday, securing 240 names, and has also carried the word to Richmond, where her son-in-law, D. F. McCurdy is circulating a petition.

Wilbur Morton
Wins Thielke
Award in Music

Out of a field of closely pressing contestants, Wilbur Morton was designated as the student having the best scholastic record in music for the past year, and was given the A. A. Thielke medal-award for that attainment at the graduation exercises held at the Campbell grammar school auditorium last Friday evening.

At the same time, general scholarship pins were presented to Hugh Cramer (three time winner), Takeru Higuchi, Frances Smith, Sal Teresi, and Dennis Bennett. The pins conferred upon these students were one-bar pins, indicating a previous winning. Recipients of no-bar pins were the following freshmen: Margaret Tanner, June Porter, Wilbur Morton, Verna Coonradt and Emily Bohnett.

Other musical scholarship awards went to Clifton Crother, Jeanette Wellington, David Bohrman, Hugh Cramer, Reed Hall and Vincent Fisci. These students pressed Wilbur Morton so closely for first honors that Mr. Thielke, director of music, decided to break precedent and confer pins upon all competitors. The general scholarship pins are an annual award to the ten ranking students in high school scholastic averages. The music award is the special gift of A. A. Thielke, and is usually given to but one student in the school each year.

Service Club
Picnic Success

Mrs. Horace Person entertained the Women's Service club at her home on West Campbell avenue last Wednesday in what was the final meeting of the club for the year 1933-34. Inclement weather frustrated the original plan, which was to include an outdoor picnic and business meeting, so the very delectable dinner was served indoors on small, cleverly appointed tables centered with bouquets of mixed flowers.

Mrs. Frank L. Morris and Mrs. Arthur Wellington were assisting hostesses.

A brief business meeting was called to order by Mrs. E. R. Kennedy following the dinner, and reports were heard from various committees. Plans were made for a thrift sale to be held sometime during the summer, and for the luncheon of the Country Woman's club in September which the Service club will serve.

Mrs. Guy E. Farley and Mrs. William Lloyd were appointed to arrange for the sale, and Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. Lloyd, Miss Rowena Farman, Mrs. Ray Fish, Mrs. Richard Saverker, Mrs. Robert Stubbe and Mrs. Neil Best were to comprise the luncheon committee. The rest of the afternoon was spent in constructing little almond baskets for the club.

Guests in attendance were Miss Leta Vorheis, Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. George Jeffers and Mrs. George Swanson.

The first meeting of the club in the new year 1934-35 will be held at the home of Mrs. Ray Fish, North Second street, on September 19.

Campbell Plant
Starts Apricot
Pack Tuesday

Two of Campbell's packing plants are now open for a strong, sizeable run of apricots.

The Campbell Packing corporation, formerly Hyde's cannery, began work yesterday, and gave employment to about 125 men and women. They will supplement their staff as occasion arises.

Drew's plant, which was recently purchased from J. C. Ainsley, opened several weeks ago upon receiving a shipment of apricots from Brentwood. It is now hiring about 350 people.

The Dempsey-Callon company, which has leased the old California Canneries plant, will not pack apricots this season. They will open for peaches and pears, however.

Father of Mrs.
LaBarbara Dies

Salvador Raineri, 74 years of age, passed away at his home in San Jose last Monday. He was the father of Mrs. Frances Stephens, San Jose, and Mrs. Josephine LaBarbara of Campbell.

Mr. Raineri is survived by his wife, Santa Raineri, daughters Mrs. Mary Zotta, Mrs. Josephine LaBarbara, Mrs. Rose Johnson and Venita Raineri, and sons Sal J. J. Raineri of San Jose and Philip Raineri of Antioch, California, as well as by Mrs. Stephens of Campbell.

Raineri was a native of Marino, Italy.

Mrs. Putnam and her daughter, Vaudine Putnam Sanders, plan to leave Friday for a trip up the Redwood highway.

With "Specs" Clarke's pneumonia ball breezing merrily down the slot, the Franklin nine was held to eight hits, and Campbell scored an easy 6 to 3 victory on the local diamond last Sunday.

Campbell is now tied for first place with Richmond-Chase, the latter team having emerged triumphant in its game with Los Gatos. Both teams have won three games and dropped one.

Garnering twelve hits in all, the home team scored its six runs in the first five innings, and was never headed. In the first inning, Campbell tallied when Cowan and Le Deit singled, and Woodworth sacrificed. Two more runs were pushed across in the second, Silberbauer, DeFraga and Clarke furnishing the impetus with a double and brace of singles respectively. Another was added in the third on Jung's single and Reed's two-bagger. DeFraga and Courans batted out a pair of singles in the fourth to score again, and the final tally came in the fifth frame when Jung and Reed clubbed out two long ones in succession.

Franklin's scores came in the fifth and eighth on a combination of bunched hits by Pampalone, Saxx, Rocchi, and Sanotti, and errors by DeFraga and Courans.

Clark whiffed nine men, while Saxx struck out five.

Albert Turner left recently for Grand Canyon national park where he has secured a position in the ranger service.

CAMPBELL, SANTA CLARA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

WED., JUNE 20, 1934

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

California farmers, who have long insisted on a strictly nonpartisan administration of the state department of agriculture, free of politics and devoted solely to promoting the welfare of the farming industry, have apparently made tremendous headway in achieving their objective.

In the present changing scene at Sacramento, for example, there is every indication that Governor Merriam will recognize the need of an efficient, business-like administration of the department and that Director A. A. Brock will be continued on the job.

Agriculture's right to self-government in its own department, first recognized by the late Governor Rolph in February, 1933, when Director Brock was placed in charge on the joint recommendation of California farm organizations and the state board of agriculture, is of even more vital importance during the period just ahead, in view of the complex problems of farm recovery.

And there are increasing signs that the department will be left undisturbed, regardless of present changes due to the advent of the Merriam administration, and regardless of the outcome of the forthcoming elections.

Perhaps the greatest aid in establishing the new viewpoint of a politically-free agricultural department was the unhappy experience of the Rolph administration during its first years in office. With a politically-minded director in the department, surrounded by political deputies, the department was embroiled in almost constant difficulties, both with the farming industry and with the federal government. Threatened loss of all federal aid in cooperative federal-state work was an important factor in ending the short-lived political regime.

When Director Brock was put on the job, it was an industry appointment, rather than a political appointment, and he has consistently and successfully resisted all efforts to play politics with the department.

Though the experience with Brock's predecessor in office was undoubtedly a dominant factor in achieving political independence for the department, still another factor in evidencing the wisdom of conducting the department on a non-partisan basis has been the great increase in efficiency and economy achieved under a business-like set-up.

Recognizing the need for greater economy in state affairs, especially in light of the demand of California farmers for rigid retrenchment and tax-reduction, Director Brock, in submitting his budget recommendations during the last legislature, voluntarily cut the department's budget more than a million dollars. And he accomplished his savings without seriously impairing worthwhile services.

Undoubtedly there will be repeated attempts in the future to make a political football of the agricultural department, but there is also promise that the great ma-

County Agent Warns Against Puncture Vine

"Our late rains have made an ideal condition for puncture vine seeds to sprout and grow in this warm summer weather," advises Agricultural Commissioner Cody of this county in a message to the press. Puncture vine, he says, is extending more and more into our orchards and along our highways. "More serious than its presence," he asserts, "is the indifference of a few who are experienced orchardists. They know its habits, the danger, but put forth no extra effort to eradicate this most serious pest."

"Its menacing burrs are not yet scattered wide enough to cause prune pickers to refuse to come in and pick the fruit. If our growers could once set eyes on vineyards and melon patches left untouched with puncture vine running rampant over them they might visualize the same thing in our prune orchards. One of its fine habits is that the plants spring up late after the ground has been laid down for picking."

"Puncture vine looks very much like the bur clover when small. It blooms almost as soon as it is out of the ground, and sets abundant, star-shaped seed pods. The seed pods break apart into divisions, each of which has two sharp spines, one always pointing up, ready to catch onto anything passing over it, and carried on to new locations. The individual plants grow to immense size, often covering 100 square feet."

"For control, the plants when first discovered should be soaked thoroughly with stove distillate and later burned. The object of spraying is to permit the liquid to soak into the tough seed capsule and destroy the germ before removing the vine. Burn a week after to be doubly sure. This office is ready to advise and assist in eradication," concluded Mr. Cody.

Majority of the responsible leaders in state affairs will support agriculture's demand for self-government and freedom from federal interference.

A political department, it has already been demonstrated, is a political liability, rather than an asset. And an efficient department, manned by men of ability and integrity, will be of immeasurable aid to the whole farming industry in achieving recovery and security.

California farm organizations, in insisting that Director Brock be kept at the helm, are not championing Brock as an individual. They are, on the other hand, championing an administration of the agricultural department which has constantly fought for the welfare of the farming industry.

Cato Advocates Enforcement by Highway Patrol

Sacramento, June 19—Creation of a statewide police force with all the powers of peace officers and with full authority to act in all cases of criminal law violation was advocated here today by E. Raymond Cato, Chief of the California Highway Patrol, as a means of combating crime.

Such a force, in Cato's opinion, should be centrally located and controlled and responsible only to a central administration. It should have no affiliation with or responsibility to any political subdivision other than the state. The Patrol chief believes its organization should be perfected not through county lines but through districts supervised by subordinate officers responsible only to the central head.

To place such a force at its maximum of efficiency,

Cato advocates the establishment of a statewide radio system with an adequate number of broadcasting stations and with receiving equipment in the car or on the motorcycle of each officer.

The safeguard against possible abuses he would limit the use of such a force in labor disputes only to the protection of life and property and in keeping the highways clear of traffic.

Chief Cato said: "Disasters in recent years in the state, major crimes, kidnappings, and escaping convicts have proven the sad lack of coordination of the law enforcement agencies of the state.

"Local law enforcement agencies have exemplified a desire to cooperate with one another but are lacking in centralized authority and means of communication.

"Such an organization should be entirely free from politics as it has been repeatedly proven that political interference handicaps law enforcement."

COL. P. T. ETHERTON

The 4,000-mile trek across the "roof of the world" through India, Kashmir, Gilget, Chinese Turkestan, Mongolia, and Siberia, undertaken in 1909 by Lieut.-Col. P. T. Etherton, was originally intended to furnish some big game hunting and scientific exploration. As it turned out, Colonel Etherton experienced extreme hardships and narrowly missed freezing to death a number of times. His only companion, aside from the natives he occasionally hired along the trail to help carry his equipment, was an Indian orderly, Giyan Sing.

Through the dangerous glacier-infested region of Tragbal pass they journeyed to Gilget, the remote region northwest of Kashmir, where Colonel Etherton was entertained by the local chieftains. Numerous escapes from falling avalanches of snow, fording raging streams, and climbing perpendicular precipices, brought them at last to the Mintake pass, 15,430 feet above sea level, marking the boundary between India and China. Up and down, zigzagging among huge boulders, fording more dangerous rivers, and negotiating a pass at 17,400 feet, they came to the limitless steppes of the Mongolian plains. Here the sand storms, and rough desert travel made going as difficult as that encountered in the mountains. But winter found the weary travelers again before they were out of the great Siberian expanse.

With the Trans-Siberian railway their goal, Colonel Etherton and his faithful Giyan Sing set out across the sparsely inhabited steppes of eastern Russia. The extreme cold caused many uncomfortable miles of travel and at last fingers and legs became severely frostbitten. But surgical operations by a skilled Russian doctor, who grafted skin on the damaged members, saved them from amputation, and the journey was completed.

REGISTRATION SHOWS FORD IN LEAD FOR MAY

The motor trade is buzzing with favorable comment on the sales gains shown by Ford here and in other sections of the country, and the consistency with which this car has outdistanced all competitors in the 1934 sales race.

Again in May registrations just released by Motor Registration News show that Ford led all makes by a wide margin. The figures are: Ford first in Northern California registrations with 1434; Chevrolet, second with 978, and Plymouth, third with 781.

In San Francisco, Ford also led by a decisive margin with 282 sales; Chevrolet again being second with 197, and Plymouth coming in third with 172. Alameda motor car buyers proved their belief in Ford quality by buying 129 cars during May, while Chevrolet sold 96 and Plymouth 55.

According to wires received here from Detroit the registrations for May in Wayne county, Michigan, (the county seat of which is Detroit) gave Ford an even more decisive lead. The figures as reported give Ford 4,950 registrations as against Chevrolet's 1,143, and Plymouth's 720.

"Such a decided preference for the Ford car is certainly evidence that the public is convinced that here truly is the car without a price class that meets the infinite demands of the American motoring public for a car that has style and speed, economy and power, fast pick-up and ease of handling. A car for the individual, and a car for the family," said P. H. Dunlap, local Ford dealer.

LOCAL MEN BUILD 'SCOPE

Mr. Neil O. Best, vice-principal of the local high school, craters within craters on the he had completed a 7 1-2 inch reflecting telescope in collaboration with his neighbor, Clare E. Williams, a salesman. The pair have been working all winter long on the project, and nothing remains now but to make a few minor adjustments and embellishments with which to perfect the instrument.

The chief difficulty, according to the inventors, comes in silvering the mirror, a process which they were forced to repeat several times, and the results of which do not even yet meet with their entire approval.

The instrument has three adjustable eyepieces, all stronger than a hundred diameters, with which they are enabled to see Jupiter and eight of his moons, craters, and earth's moon, Saturn and the moons of Saturn, and innumerable other celestial sights.

"Anyone can see what the Moon or Jupiter looks like in pictures, but the thrill comes from actually seeing them through a telescope for the first time," the inventors declared.

For the most part, the telescope is a home-made product. The base and swivel of the device is an ingenious conversion of the rear end of an old Ford, and the tube is a piece of eight inch pipe made from galvanized metal. The mirror is set in one end of this tube.

A simplified explanation of the process by which the stars are observed is: the rays enter the outer end of the tube, are conveyed to a parabolic lens at the other end, which is silvered from which the rays are refracted back to a prism which by reflection bends them into the eye-piece located on one side of the tube.

KIWANIS NOTES
By Heck

At Kiwanis luncheon Tuesday the club voted $10 toward the purchase of a respirator for the county, need of which has become of major importance with the report of several cases of infantile paralysis in the valley.

was Prof. T. A. Schwartz, Redwood City chemist and assistant professor in that subject at Stanford and Santa Clara universities. He spoke on the man Hitler and his regime in Germany.

According to Professor Schwartz Hitler had nothing to do with the formation of the Fascisti, being rather an opportunist who seized the machine built by a disgruntled middle class. Hitler was a common soldier in the war; was later an army intelligence officer working against communism. He is believed to be mentally unbalanced, possibly due to an illness early in his career, Schwartz, who came to this country in 1930, said.

While unemployment has increased Hitler's power considerably of recent months, Mr. Schwartz believes that the Nazi vogue is due to be tossed over for something else within a year or two. He believes that a United States of Europe is inevitable.

the process by which the stars are observed is: the rays enter the outer end of the tube, are conveyed to a parabolic lens at the other end, which is silvered from which the rays are refracted back to a prism which by reflection bends them into the eye-piece located on one side of the tube.

The parabolic lens, or exactly convex lens, was a piece of port-hole glass which Williams and Best ground down and polished with garnet rouge after many hours of tedious work. After the glass was polished to their satisfaction, they silvered it, but the latter process has yet to be satisfactorily completed. The two inventors hope to have perfected the silvering of the instrument by the end of next week.

A. T. & T. STOCK IS 97% AMERICAN OWNED

Remaining 3% Is Held in 82 Foreign Countries

Although more than 97 per cent of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's stock is held within the United States, there are approximately 8,300 stockholders who live in foreign countries and in United States possessions. Eighty-two such foreign countries are represented.

There are about 3,100 A. T. & T. stockholders living in five North American countries (excluding the United States), 4,200 in 23 European countries, 625 in 17 countries of Asia and Islands in the Pacific, 300 in 13 countries of Central America and the West Indies, 75 in 10 South American countries, and 25 in four African countries.

The largest number of A. T. & T. stockholders outside the United States is to be found in Canada, France and the British Isles. About 4,500, or more than one-half the total foreign holders, are located in the British Empire.

During the last five years, twenty-five countries have been added to those in which A. T. & T. stock is held. Today, no country of any importance is missing from the list except Russia.

Dressings for Early Summer Salads

THERE WAS once a time in our salad history when boiled dressing was the only finishing touch to a bowl of cool leafy greens or crisp spring vegetables. The foreign tang and zest of French dressing was not part of our culinary lore. After the introduction of these two dressings, however, salads acquired a new flavor flair. Skillful cooks, eager to create variations of these dressings that lent themselves so easily to development, found the simple addition of choice spices, piquant sauces and rare cheeses gave delightful novelties. Then their interest spread to include boiled dressings which had been holding their own in salad esteem throughout all this period of experiment. They, too, lent themselves to ingenious additions and emerged as surprising new versions of an old favorite. The following recipes suggest a few of the novel dressing possibilities that lie in a good basic recipe.

Cooked Salad Dressing (foundation recipe)—Mix 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon Prepared Brown Mustard, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1 egg and ¼ cup milk, blending well after addition of each. Add 4 tablespoons Pure Cider Vinegar slowly, blending thoroughly. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from fire, add 1 tablespoon butter, and blend.

Calcutta Dressing—When making foundation recipe, mix ¼ teaspoon curry powder with other foundation ingredients. When dressing is cool, add ¼ cup Sandwich Spread. Especially good with Lettuce and Chicory Salad and Chicken and Vegetable Salad.

Cole Slaw Dressing—To foundation recipe add 2 tablespoons Prepared Yellow Mustard when dressing is cool. Especially good with Cabbage Salad and Quick Cole Slaw.

Fluffy Dressing—When making foundation recipe, separate the egg, use the yolk as directed, and lastly, fold in the stiffly beaten egg white after dressing is cooked, and cool. Especially good with Stuffed Date Salad and Stuffed Prune Salad.

Hawaiian Dressing—To foundation recipe, when cool, add 3 tablespoons orange juice and 3 tablespoons pineapple juice. Especially good with Pineapple Supreme Salad and Pineapple, Celery and Nut Salad.

Manhattan Dressing—To foundation recipe, when cool, add ½ cup Sandwich Spread. Here's a chance to experiment. First taste this dressing.

Peanut Butter Dressing—To foundation recipe, when cool, add 4 tablespoons Peanut Butter. (A dressing that is good on either mixed fruit or vegetable salads.) Especially good with Stuffed Prune Salad and Julienne Salad.

Tomato Dressing—To foundation recipe, when cool, add 1 finely chopped hard cooked egg, 1 chopped pimiento and 1 tablespoon chopped Sour Gherkins. Especially good with Lettuce Salad.

Savory Dressing—To foundation recipe, when cool, add ¼ cup India Relish. Especially good with Meat and Vegetable Salad and Ham Mousse Salad.

Whipped Cream Dressing—Fold into the foundation recipe, when cool, ¼ cup whipped cream. Especially good with Molded Grapefruit Salad and Pear Macaroon Salad.

Fruit Salad Dressing—To foundation recipe add 1 tablespoon sugar, and substitute ½ cup pineapple juice plus ¼ cup orange juice for the milk. The Mustard may be omitted, if desired. Cool. If a fluffy dressing is desired, fold in ½ cup whipped cream. Especially good with Pineapple and Strawberry Salad and Pineapple, Celery and Nut Salad.

Grange Auxiliary decided last Friday to sponsor a card party in the Odd Fellows' hall, July 10. This was the announcement of Mrs. Henry C. Skow, president of the organization.

It was suggested at the same time that the members of the Grange be advised that they must buy their own food for future harvest feasts, and that a small charge be levied as a means of raising money to that end.

George Page is home from the hospital where he was recently treated for an appendicitis condition.
